NEIGHBOR TO NEIGHBOR: A MEMOIR OF FAMILY, COMMUNITY, AND CIVIL WAR IN APPALACHIAN NORTH CAROLINA

Sandra L. Ballard & Leila E. Weinstein, Editors

The memoir of William Albert Wilson, an intimate and dramatic telling of the Civil War at home on the north fork headwaters of the New River in Ashe County, North Carolina, featuring Wilson family genealogy, historic maps, community history and photographs.

With scholarly essays of historic and contemporary context by

- Patricia Beaver, anthropologist, Appalachian State University
- John Inscoe, historian, University of Georgia
- Martin Crawford, historian, University of Keele, England, and author of Ashe County's Civil War

"The memoir of William A. Wilson and the accompanying essays are especially strong in providing a reader with a vivid sense of place. Ashe County emerges with its rugged terrain and tangled relationships in full view. ... Many Americans experienced the war at home, away from battlefields and campaigns, and yet, as the memoir shows clearly, they still felt the reach of that war in intense and life-changing ways. Together, the memoir and essays present local history at its best..."
